

Do you believe serial killers are born, or made? Has your opinion changed since reading Like Mother, Like Daughter?

Did you find yourself sympathising with Sally when you found out what she went through as a child?

As you were reading, did you feel like Kat was too harsh on Imogen? Too lenient on Jemima?

If Brad hadn't sent Imogen a message on Facebook, would she still have felt like an outsider?

Given the sensitivity of the case, do you think Dylan and Kat should have told Imogen about her birth parents from the beginning?

Why do you think Kat was so desperate to meet and talk to Sally?

Would Sally still have been able to influence Brad if Kat and Dylan had adopted him? Were they wrong to separate the siblings?

Do you believe Imogen would have killed Kat if Jemima hadn't stepped in? Why/why not?

Did you guess Jemima's true nature? If so, what made you suspect her?

What do you think happens next in the story? Does Sally take Jemima under her wing?
